Some years ago, there were nine planets in our Solar System: Mars, Mercury, Neptune, Saturn, Earth, Venus, Jupiter, Uranus and Pluto. Then, there was a huge debate about what a planet would be. There were some scientists that were not happy about Pluto being classified as a planet. In 2006, there was a meeting of the International Astronomy Union (IAU) in Prague and it was decided that Pluto would be classified as a “dwarf planet”.
